Dear Students:

We are at the end of another school year.

Some of you will return to Mark Twain next year, while others will go on to high school. Which ever you do, I hope that you will go with the knowledge, maturity, wisdom, and poise that will enable you to meet all the challenges you will face with the assurance that you can do a good job and succeed in whatever you attempt.

A sound education is the foundation of a successful and worthwhile life.

I hope that we have served you well.
